A new year, a new move further downtown for BNO Design's offices as Benjamin Noriega-Ortiz celebrates more than two decades of exquisite residential and hospitality design work. Noriega-Ortiz's ability to transcend the mundane and capture the ethereal openness of a space through the use of color, materials, and architecture has made him one of today's most influential interior designers. In addition to high-end residential design, he founded ABYU Lighting, a couture lighting manufacturer of whimsical and creative fixtures, in 2007. Upcoming commissions include Mondrian at Baha Mar in the Bahamas, a house in Melbourne, Australia, another house in Martha's Vineyard, and condominiums in the 35XV building on West 15th Street.

Bunny Williams, a household name since opening her company in 1988, has a reputation for creating interiors that epitomize restraint and appropriateness, and that balance classic design with a dash of surprise. She continues to grow the Bunny Williams Home collection and Treillage, the garden shop she co-owns with John Rosselli. The tireless chair of the Kips Bay Show House Committee, she's authored four books, and recently launched a collection of rugs with Dash & Albert, as well as pillows and throws for Pine Cone Hill. Williams' new projects include a house in France and a penthouse apartment on Central Park West.
